BLUE GRASS FARM FOR SALE.

THE Farm on which I now reside is for sale. It is situated about four miles south of Cynthiana, half a mile from Lat's Station, on the K. C. R. R., at which point there is a post office, express office, depot, saw mill and two excellent grist mills that manufacture the best quality of flour and meal. It is within 2 hours ride of Cincinnati, and 1 1/2 of Lexington. It contains about 175 acres, one hundred acres well timbered. The remainder cleared and in the highest state of cultivation. The buildings are in good order. The improvements consist of a comfortable dwelling, partly frame and partly log, weatherboarded and plastered and painted, containing six rooms, cook-house and all necessary out buildings, including two large stables (with lots for feed) large enough to hold and feed 75 mules at a time which can be done without going out of doors, as there is large wide feed rooms extending the whole length of the stables, in which there is a cutting box run by horse power, with capacity and strength enough to cut a large quantity of provender in a short time. There is also a young orchard of select fruit of various kind now bearing. The farm is supplied with abundance of pure water for all purposes, as there is upon it a number of never failing springs (some of them near the dwelling) and South Licking which runs along one side of it. Any one wishing to purchase such a farm, would do well to call and examine for themselves, as the place will be sold for a reasonable price, the payments made easy and if desired a part of the money can be run a considerable length of time at moderate interest.

I also desire to sell 400 acres of land which lies in Lewis county, Missouri. Said land is situated about 12 miles from Fabers on the road leading from there to Monticello, and about 16 miles from the Mississippi river, about one half of it timbered land, the timber excellent, the balance prairie of good quality, a little rolling and dry, in a good neighborhood, and is surrounded by old settlers and finely improved farms. There is a 2 1/2 acre hand-some brick church and school house in sight of the land. Also, a small village and post office near by. Price reasonable, payments easy and made to suit the ability and convenience of purchasers. For further particulars call on May 2-6f I. N. LAIR.

WONDERFUL BUT TRUE.

Madame Remington, the world renowned astrologist and somnambulist clairvoyant, while in a clairvoyant state, delineates the very features of the person you are to marry, and by an instrument of intense power, known as the Psychometrop, guarantees to produce a perfect and life-like picture of the future husband or wife of the applicant, with date of marriage, occupation, leading traits of character, &c. This is no imposition, as testimonials without number can attest. By stating place of birth, age, disposition, color of eyes and hair, and enclosing fifty cents, stamped envelope addressed to yourself, you will receive the picture by return mail, together with desired information. Address in confidence, Madame Gertrude Remington, P. O. box 297, West Troy, N. Y.

EU NICE.

In her golden chamber,
Golden with the sun,
Where the roses clamber
Breathless, one by one.
(O'er her easement creeping,
With their lavish grace,
Through her lattice peeping
At her happy face.)
Sitteth fairest Eunice,
Reading calmly there,
Shamrock, rose and thistle,
Carved in jewels rare.
Clasp'd the velvet color,
With a rare device;
Scrolls are blazon'd over
Gold and azure dyes.
Ardent Angels flying,
Peacock's eyes and wings,
Martyrs bravely dying,
Quaint and lovely things!
Rubies red and glowing,
Pearls and on-raid sheaves,
Sapphire rivers flowing,
Glisten through the leaves.
I, a page, a servant,
Eunice, as a queen,
At my love so fervent,
Smiles, with pride serene.
All my love, my passion,
All myself I give;
True to ancient fashion,
Loving while I live.
Claiming naught from Eunice,
Knowing love is vain;
Wine pour'd from chalice
Flows not back again.
True love is a treasure,
Sacred and divine,
Without stint or measure,
Cast upon a shrine.
Eunice is an altar,
Flaming with my love!
Where my prayer I falter
As to heaven above.
Kneeling low before her,
Every pulse and breath
Asks but to adore her,
Faithful unto death!

The Crazy Engineer.

My train left Dantzic in the morning generally about eight o'clock but once a week we had to wait for the arrival of the steamer from Stockholm. It was the morning of the steamer's arrival that I came down from the hotel, and found that my engineer had been so badly injured that he could not run—a railway carriage had run over him and broken one of his legs. I went immediately to the engine house to procure another engineer, (for I serve there), but I was disappointed, I inquired for Westphal, but I was informed that he had gone to Steegan to see his mother. Godolpho had been sent away, but where was Mayne? He had leave of absence for two days and had gone.

Here was a fix! I heard the puffing of the steamer, and the passengers would be on hand in fifteen minutes. I ran to the guards, and asked them if they knew where there was an engineer, but they did not, I then went to the firemen and asked them if any of them felt competent to run the engine to Bromburg. No one dared to attempt it. The distance was nearly one hundred miles. What was to be done?

The steamer stopped at the wharf, and those going on by rail came flocking up to the station. They had eaten breakfast on board of the boat, and were all ready for a fresh start. The baggage was checked and registered, the tickets bought the different carriages pointed to the different classes of passengers, and the passengers themselves seated. The train was in readiness to start, in the distant firing house.

It was past nine o'clock.
"Why don't we start?" growled an old fat Swede, who had been watching me narrowly for the last fifteen minutes.

And upon this there was a general chorus of anxious inquiry, which soon settled to downright murmuring. At this juncture, some one touched me on the elbow. I turned and saw a stranger by my side. I expected he was going to remonstrate with me for my backwardness. In fact I began to have strong temptations to pull off my uniform; for every anxious eye was fixed upon the glaring badges, which marked me as the chief officer of the train.

However, this stranger was a middle aged man tall and stout, with a face of great energy and intelligence. His eye was black and brilliant—so brilliant that I could not for the life of me gaze steadily into it—and his lips, which were very thin, seemed more like marble than human flesh. His dress was black throughout, and not only set with exact nicety, but was scrupulously clean.

"You want an engineer, I understand," he said, in a low, cautious tone, at the same time gazing quietly about him, as though he wanted no one to hear him.

I do, my train is all ready and we have no engineer within twenty miles of this place.

"Well sir, I am going to Bromburg—I must go—and I will run the train for you."

"Hail! uttered, are you an engineer?"

"I am sir—one of the oldest in the country; and am now on my way on my way to make arrangements for a great improvement I have invented for the application of steam to a locomotive. My name is Martin Krollor. If you wish I will run as far as Bromburg; and I will show you running that is running."

Was I not fortunate? I determined to accept the man's offer at once and so I told him. He received my answer with a nod and a smile. I went with him to the house, where we found the iron-horse and the fireman, and all ready for the start. He got upon the engine and I followed him. I had never seen a man betray such peculiar aptness amid the machinery as he did. He let on the steam in an instant, but yet with care and judgment, and he backed up to the baggage carriage with the most exact nicety. I had seen enough to assure me that he was thoroughly acquainted with the business, and I felt composed.

I gave my engine up to the new man, and then hastened away to the office. Word was passed to all the passengers to take their seats, and soon afterwards waved my hand to the engineer. There was a puff—a groaning of the heavy axletrees—a trembling of the building—and the train was in motion. I leaped upon the platform of the guard carriage, and in a few minutes more the station house was far behind us.

In less than an hour we reached Dirsham, where we took up the passengers that had come on. Here I went forward and asked Krollor how he liked the engine. He said he liked it very well.

"But," he added, with a strange sparkling of the eye, wait until I get my improvement, and then you will see traveling. By the soul of the Virgin Mother, sir, I could run an engine of my construction, to the moon in twenty-four hours.

I smiled at what I thought his quaint enthusiasm, and then went back to my station. As soon as all the Konigsburg passengers were on board, and their baggage checked, we started again.

As soon as all matters had been attended to connected with the new accession of passengers, I went into the guard carriage and set down. An early train from Konigsburg had been through two hours before reaching Bromburg, and that was at little Osene, where we took on board the western mail.

"How we go," uttered one of the guards, some fifteen minutes after we had left Dirsham.

"The new engineer is trying the speed," I replied, not yet holding any fear.

But ere long I began to fear he was running a little too fast. The carriages began to sway to and fro, and I could hear exclamations of fear from the passengers.

"Good heavens!" cried one of the guards, coming in at that moment; "what is that fellow doing? Look, sir, and see how we are running."

I looked at the window, and found that we were dashing along at a speed never before traveled on that road. Posts, fences, rocks, and trees flew by in one undistinguished mass, and the carriages now swayed fearfully.

I started to my feet, and met a passenger on the platform. He was one of the chief owners of the road, and was on his way to Berlin. He was pale and excited.

"Sir, he gasped, is Martin Krollor on the engine?"

"Yes."

"Holy Virgin! didn't you know who he was?"

"No."

"Good heavens, he is as crazy as a man can be. He turned his brain over a new plan for applying steam power. I saw him at the station, but did not recognize him, as I was in a hurry. Just now one of the passengers told me that your engineers were all gone this morning, and that you found one that was a stranger to you. Then I knew that the man whom I had seen was Krollor. He had escaped from the hospital at Setten. You must get him off."

That a few more miles per hour would launch us into destruction. I called to the guard, and then made my way forward as quick as possible. I reached the platform, and there stood Krollor upon the engine board, his hat and coat off, his long black hair floating wildly in the wind, his shirt unbuttoned at the throat, his sleeves rolled up, with a pistol in his teeth, and glaring upon the fireman, who lay motionless upon the wood. The furnace was studded till the latch of the door was red hot, and the engine was quivering and swaying as though it would shiver to pieces.

"Krollor!" I cried at the top of my voice.

He started and caught the pistol in his hand. Oh! how those great black eyes glared, and how ghastly the face looked.

"Hail! hail! he yelled, demoniacally; glaring upon me like a roused lion."

"They swore that I could not make it! But see! see my new power! See my new engine! I made it and they are jealous of me. I made it and they stole it from me! But I have found it! For years I have been wandering in search of my great engine, and they swore it was not made. But I have found it. I knew it when I saw it this morning, and I was determined to have it, and I have got it! Ho! ho! ho!—we're on the way to the moon, I say! By the Virgin Mother, we'll be in the moon in four and twenty hours. Down, down, villain! If you move again, I'll shoot you."

This was spoken to the poor fireman, who at that moment attempted to rise, and the frightened man sank back.

Here's Little Osene right at hand, said the guard.

But even as he spoke the building was at hand. A sickening sensation settled upon my heart, for I supposed that we were gone now. The houses flew by like lightning. I knew if the officers here had turned the switch as usual, we should be hurled into eternity in one fearful crash. I closed my eyes; but still we thundered on. The officers had seen our speed, and knowing that we could not head up in that distance, they had changed the switch, so that we went on.

But there was certain death ahead, if we did not stop. Only fifteen miles ahead was the town of Schwartz on the Vistula, and at the rates we were going we should be there in a few minutes, for each minute carried us over a mile. The shrieks of the passengers now arose above the crash of the rails, and more terrible than all else rose the demoniac yells of the mad engine.

"Merciful heavens! gasped one of the guardsmen, there's not a moment to lose, Schwartz is close by. But hold, he added, let's shoot him!"

At that moment a tall, stout German student came over the platform where we stood, and we saw that the madman had his heavy pistol aimed at us. He grasped a heavy stick of wood, and with a steadiness of nerve which I could not have commanded, he hurled it with such precision and force that he knocked the pistol from his hand. I saw the movement, and on the instant I fell, I sprang forward, and the German followed me. I grasped the madman by the arm, but I would have been nothing in his mad power, had I been alone. He would have hurled me from the platform, had not the student at that moment struck him upon the head with a stick of wood, which he had taken as he came over the tender.

Krollor settled down like a dead man, and the next minute I shut off the steam, and opened the valve, as the freed steam howled and shrieked in its escape, the speed began to decrease, and in a few minutes more the danger was passed. As I settled back, entirely overcome at the wild emotions that had raged within me, we began to turn the river, and, before I was entirely recovered, the fireman had stopped the train in the station house at Schwartz.

Krollor was insensible when he was taken from the platform; and as we carried him to the guard station, one of the guards told us that he had been there about two weeks before.

"He came, said the guard, and swore that an engine which stood near here was his. He said it was one he had made to go to the moon in, and that it had been stolen from him. We sent for more help to arrest him, but he fled."

"Well, I replied with a shudder, I wish he had approached me in that manner; but he was more cautious with me."

At Schwartz we found an engineer to run the engine to Bromburg; and having taken out the western mail for the next northern train to take, we saw that Krollor would be taken care of properly, we again started on our way.

The rest of the trip we ran in safety, though I could see that the passengers were not wholly at ease, and could not be until they were entirely clear of the railroad. A heavy purse was made by them for the German student, and he accepted it with gratitude and I was glad of it, for the current of gratitude to him may have prevented a far different current, which might have poured upon my head, for having engaged a madman to run a railroad train.

But this is not the end. Krollor remained insensible from the effects of that blow upon the head nearly two weeks; and when he recovered from that, he was found again—his insanity was all gone. I saw him about three weeks afterwards but he had no recollection of me. He remembered nothing of the past year, not even his mad freak on my engine.

But I remembered it, and I remember it still; and the people need never fear that I shall be imposed on again by a crazy engineer.

A certain physician, at sea, made great use of sea-water among the patients. Whatever disease came on, a dose of nauseating liquid was first thrown down. In process of time the doctor fell overboard. A great bustle consequently ensued on board, in the midst of which the captain came up, and inquired the cause.

"Oh, nothing, sir," answered one of the tars, "only the doctor has fallen in to his medicine-chest."

A quaint writer says: I have seen women so delicate that they were afraid to ride for fear of the horse running away; afraid to sail for fear the boat might upset; afraid to walk for fear the tree might fall; but I never saw one afraid to marry; which is more risky than all three put together.

The chain gang is an institution, or was, at Georgia, it appears, of military creation, having been established at Augusta by Gen. Steadman in August, 1865, and yet the radicals would make the impression that the chain gang was a relic of Southern barbarism.

The valiant Captain at Memphis who "saved the nation" on the 26th by a raid on the flowers designed for the graves of Confederate soldiers, is advised that the nation is again in danger. Several pieces of music bearing the mutilated flag of Dixie have appeared in the shop windows of Memphis. Another ukase is expected.

An Illinois bruiser, in describing a gale of wind, said that a white dog, while attempting to breast the storm was caught with his mouth open, and, turned completely inside out.

A sentimental young man thus feelingly expresses himself:
"Even as nature benevolently guards the rose with thorns, so does she endow woman with pins."

Slander issuing from beautiful lips are like spiders crawling from the heart of a rose.

"How did you get rid of that troublesome lover of yours, Annie?"

"Indeed I'll do no such thing; I never could raise one for myself."

A gentleman hiring a servant in New York, after patiently enduring the usual catechism propounded by "help," when asked if she had many children, replied:
"Yes, I have five, but I can drown two or three if you insist upon it."

A traveler, perceiving two crows flying side by side, said: "Ay, that is just as it should be; I hate to see one crow over another."

REPARATOR CAPILL.

Throw away false frizzes, switches and wig. Destructive of comfort, and not worth a fig. Come aged, come youthful, ugly and fair. And rejoice in your own luxuriant hair.

Reparator Capilli, for restoring the hair upon bald heads (from whatever cause it may have fallen out) and forcing a growth of hair upon the face, it has no equal. It will force the hair to grow upon the smoothest face in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads from two to three months. A few ignorant practitioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of hair or beard. Their assertions are false, as thousands of living witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witness. But many will say, how are we to distinguish the genuine from the spurious? It certainly is difficult, as symptoms of the different preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown away large amounts in their purchase. To such we would say, try the Reparator Capilli. It will cost you nothing unless it fully comes up to our representations. If your druggists does not keep it, send us one dollar and we will forward it, post-paid, together with a receipt for the money, which will be returned to you on application, provided entire satisfaction is not given. Address, W. L. Clark & Co., Chemists, No. 3 West Fayette street, Syracuse, N. Y.

ASTROLOGY.

THE WORLD ASTONISHED.

At the wonderful revelations made by the great astrologer, Madame H. A. Perrigo, she reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doleful events, catastrophes, crosses, in love, loss of relations and friends, loss of money, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue and in what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and characteristics of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—the malefic stars above, or even more malefic in the configuration—from the aspects and position of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future destiny of man. Fail not to consult the greatest astrologer on earth. It costs you but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation fee, with likeness and all desired information, $1. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered and likeness enclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence returned or destroyed. References of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year in which you were born, enclosing a small lock of hair. Address, Madame H. A. Perrigo, P. O. Drawer 253, Buffalo, N. Y. feb28-ly.
